- The Big Ask
 - What are the next steps?
 - The game will be developed more aesthetically and add compelling features that will allow the player to not only physically explore the ancient forest but visually as well.
 - The concept of this game has also been considered for virtual reality platform experience.

- What support do you need from a developer / publisher / funder?
- The support from any one of these categories would go into further polishing the game and adding better visual aesthetics to improve player attractability

- Why should we have faith that you can execute the next steps?
- Fate lies within the game that you are playing. From the moment people start to play my game, free or paid, the adventure begins and even that is enough to push me further into having my next steps put into action.
